

LESSON 1 – TELL A TALE

1. What was the purpose of writing fairy tales?

The purpose of writing fairy tales was to solve problems and they allow children to understand that good people win over the evil ones.

2. Write down two similarities and two differences between fairy tales and fables.

Two similarities between fairy tales and fables are as follows:

- (1) Children enjoy reading both.
- (2) Both of these teach moral values to children.

Two differences between fairy tales and fables are as follows:

- (1) Fairy tales have more number of human characters and fables have more number of animal characters.
- (2) Fairy tales are intended to teach children how to solve problems while fables teach children to use their talent in an effective way

3. What are the possible settings of adventure stories?

The possible settings of adventure stories are tall mountains, barren deserts, or the deepest of oceans.

4. What are the different kinds of stories mentioned in the very first paragraph of this lesson?

The different kinds of stories mentioned in the very first paragraph of this lesson are real-life incidents, written records, and stories that are imaginary, adventurous, magical, and full of horror.

5. Why are Aesop's fables so interesting to read?

Aesop's fables are so interesting to read because they have animal characters who have human like qualities and the stories usually end with a moral lesson.

6. What helped Dr. A.P.J Abdul kalam decide his future career?

Witnessing the lesson on the birds' flight helped Dr A.P.J. Abdul Kalam decide his future career.